

If Our Quilts Could Talk, What Would They Say About Us? Supply List

Take the time to thoughtfully select TWO quilts to share; one that was perhaps made for you or made by an ancestor (Mother, Grandmother, Mother-in-law, etc.), and a quilt that you made recently.

If you've given away the recent quilt, at least have some pictures to refer to -- if that is the quilt that you want to explore.

- A composition lined notebook (available at Dollar stores, or Target)
- A pen for note taking
- Post-it Flags or Tabs (repositionable, write on, -- so you can create sections for the quilts you're going to write about)
- Any leftover fabric from either of the quilts
- Take a moment before the workshop to jot down any memories associated with each of the quilts.

I'll email you a list of prompts that will help you write your stories and capture the important detail from the life of the quiltmaker (YOU).

We'll all share the quilts we've chosen and discuss important details in them.

This will be a fun exercise for everyone.

If you have ANY questions, please contact me at anniesmithqs@gmail.com.